

Into an artist's world

Visiting artist Kendall Buster's site-specific sculpture 'Subterrain,' now on view in the visual arts building, was built with the help of a class of UGA art students.

Photography by Peter Frey

Grad student Julie Jones (above left) stands within the growing sculpture. Siemon Allen (above) hoists a support for one of the sections. Allen, the husband of the artist, came to help in the installation.

Artist Kendall Buster begins the installation; grad student Julie Jones is behind the ladder. Buster explores scale through the construction of mammoth sculptural forms. The work will be on display through Nov. 11.